TWO VIEWS OF AMERICA GIVEN TO VOTERS

Glenn Pictures Government Threatened by New Deal

A representative gathering of attentive men and women assembled in the circuit court room at the court house last evening to listen to an address by former United States Senator Otis F. Glenn, Republican candidate for return to that office. The speaker presented two pictures to the voters—first, that of traditional America, swaying upon the foundation of government, and the other of the New Deal as something both ludicrous and menacing.

"Seldom, except in time of war, has America faced the future with less certainty, less faith, less confidence, more doubt and worse confusion," said Glenn.

The country's salvation, he said, rests with the Republicans. "We must say to these theorists—these professors from higher and yon these disciples of Moscow—that their dictatorial, bureaucratic policies of destruction must stop," he told his applauding audience.

Referring to the Democratic platform and President Roosevelt's promises to abide by its provisions 100 per cent in his acceptance address at Chicago, the speaker said:

"It promises to the people have not been kept and the president who told the country before the election, that he subscribed to them 100 per cent, has not tried to keep them. The platform said: 'The democratic party solemnly promises by appropriate action to put into effect the principles, policies and reforms herein advocated. We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government.'"

"Instead of reducing the number of bureaus, etc., as they so solemnly promised, the democrats have added many new ones until, indeed, the alphabet has been exhausted in the search for new names. This administration already has spent more money than

ROUTE 70 RIGHT-OF-WAY SECURED; WORK MAY START

The right of way for the extension of state highway, route 71, a distance of more than ten miles across Lee county from the junction with route 70 in the east end of the county, was practically cleared today, it was announced at a meeting of highway commissioners of the several townships through which the new state highway will be routed. The meeting was in progress in the supervisor's room at the court house today.

Merton M. Menier, engineer of design of the state highway department, and County Superintendent of Highways Fred Leake were in attendance at the sessions this morning and this afternoon. One tract in Amboy township, known as the Hakes property, has not been signed. It was stated, but the delay was attributed to the fact that releases had not been obtained from minor heirs residing outside Lee county.

The contract for heavy grading operations on the extension is expected to be awarded this month. It was also stated that there is a possibility that the extension may be constructed during 1936.

ITALY REFUSES TO JOIN ACTION AGAINST HITLER

As France Rejects British Proposal Concerning Rhineland

LONDON, March 18.—(AP)—Stanley M. Bruce, president of the Council of the League of Nations, announced today that the council's "committee of 43" will meet tomorrow to start negotiations for halting the war in Ethiopia.

League officials pointed out that an end of the Italo-Ethiopian war would end the application of sanctions against Italy.

It is these sanctions which have impeded Italy's support of league action against Germany.

(Copyright, 1936, by AP)

LONDON, March 18.—Italy announced officially today that she would join in no sanctions against Germany based on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's denunciation of the Locarno treaty.

This announcement was conveyed to a public session of the League of Nations Council by Dino Grandi, Premier Mussolini's ambassador to London.

Ambassador Grandi declared that Italy fully recognizes that Germany had committed a treaty violation, "but you cannot expect my country, after what happened at Geneva, to take any measures which are incompatible with or in contradiction to our ideas."

He was referring specifically to the League of Nations' sanctions against Italy for her war with Ethiopia.

French Reject Proposal
The Italian statement of position fell upon the ears of representatives of Locarno treaty signatories who were deadlocked in their attempts to straighten out the tangled European crisis. The French had flatly refused even to consider a British proposal for a Franco-German demilitarized zone along the Rhine.

Previous to the public session of the council, representatives of Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy struggled in the foreign office to find a new way to restore the shattered security framework of western Europe.

A delegation of German diplomats, assured of Great Britain's consideration of Hitler's new peace

Horner Accepts Resignation of An Enemy From $6,000 Year Job; Martin Remains at Head of IERC

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—F. Lynden Smith, campaign manager for Governor Horner, today announced that the governor has accepted the resignation of John C. Martin, organization candidate for state treasurer, as chairman of the state tax commission.

Smith said he did not know who is being considered as Martin's successor.

Martin was continued in his other job as chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, from which he does not draw a salary. He has received $6,000 yearly as chairman.

President Wants Billion and Half to Continue WPA Work During Election Year

Sends Special Word to Congress Today Asking for Fund

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today asked congress to appropriate $1,500,000,000 for work relief during the next government year beginning July 1.

In a special message to congress, the chief executive reviewed the unemployment problem, proposed that the new funds go entirely to the works progress administration and added:

"The trend of re-employment is upward, but this trend, at its present rate of progress, is inadequate. I propose therefore, that we ask private business to extend its operations so as to absorb an increasing number of the unemployed, x x x

"If the employment gains are substantial enough, no additional appropriation by the next congress for the fiscal year 1937 will be necessary. The ultimate cost of the federal works program will thus be determined by private enterprise."

Prior Appropriation
In making the request for $1,500,000,000, Roosevelt noted that more than $1,000,000,000 would be spent out of the treasury in the next fiscal year from prior appropriations, while the budget contained $600,000,000 for various public works and the civilian conservation corps.

The gross projected relief outlay, consequently, approximated $3,100,000,000. This compared with the president's estimate that relief outlays in the current financial year will amount to $3,500,000,000.

In making his relief request, Roosevelt told congress:

"This request together with those previously submitted to the congress to provide for the civilian conservation corps and certain public works will, if acted upon favorably by the congress, give security during the next fiscal year to those most in need, on condition, however, that private employers hire many of those now on relief rolls."

"Reduction in Deficit"

The president said if the tax program were carried through as he requested, the $1,500,000,000 work relief appropriation "would in effect provide for the third

Critic of New Deal Found Crucified in Florida

Ocala, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—His lips sewed tightly with two stitches of twine and a heavy hunting coat thrown over his head to muffle his groans, George J. Timmerman, 39, unemployed bricklayer, was found nailed to a wooden cross in a heavily wooded hammock inside the city limits today.

While en route to his work at Camp Roosevelt, headquarters for construction on the Florida ship canal, James White, heard groans. After a search he found the man laying on the ground semi-conscious with 30-penny spikes driven through each hand and both feet and shoes.

He said he recognized Timmerman, a friend, and telephoned police.

Officers removed the spikes and stitches and took Timmerman to a hospital, where his condition was described as painful but not serious. Officers said he recently had been engaged in labor difficulties on the cross-state canal and had been a critic of the government.

Representatives of the Stark Building company of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, which firm obtained the contract for the construction of Dixon's sewage disposal system, are in the city making preliminary arrangements for the beginning of work at an early date. Lumber was delivered to the site of the treatment plant west of the city limits today, where a central tool shed and offices will be erected.

The first requisition for laborers to be used on the project was made this morning and it was stated that work would probably start on a limited scale within a few days. Engineers are making a survey of the plans at the present time, preparatory to increasing the force of workmen as soon as possible. Considerable construction machinery has been shipped to Dixon to the site of the plant. Superintendents of construction are in the city arranging to begin the extensive project under the Public Works Administration program.

Representatives of the E. N. Rocho Construction Company of Freeport are also on the ground, outlining plans for beginning work on the sewer extension program of the project. It was announced this morning that this work would be started within a week or ten days and rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

Former Amboy Mayor on County Welfare Body

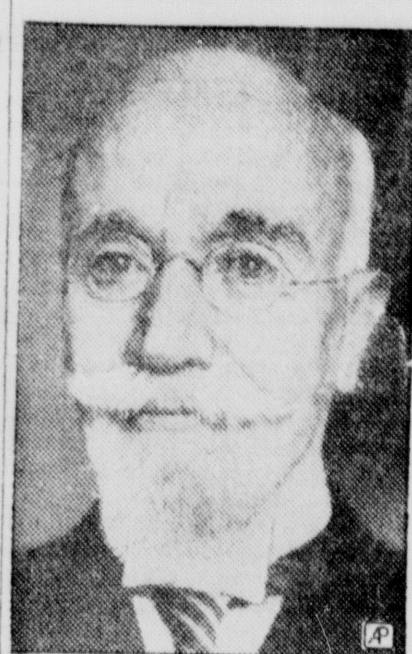

John P. Harvey of Amboy was appointed to membership of the Lee County Welfare commission this morning by Judge Leech in the county court. He will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Michael Mihm of Amboy, who is moving from that city to DeKalb. Mr. Harvey is a former mayor of Amboy, is well acquainted throughout Lee county, and will be a very able addition to the county commission.

The members of the commission will go to Steward Thursday where applicants for old age pensions in the northeast section of Lee county will appear at the Alto town hall in Steward. County Judge William Leech will accompany the commission and at the opening of the meeting tomorrow morning will explain the provisions of the new law.

HOPKINS SEEKS TO STEM GROWING CRITICISM

Charges of Political Activity in Relief Ranks Increase

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins today wrote all WPA state administrators that "no person shall be employed or discharged on the ground of his support or non-support of any political organization."

The works progress boss, whose administration has been charged with political activities by Republicans and Senator Holt (D-W.Va.), said his notice was to be posted in every district office and delivered to the foreman of every project.

Order Dated March 13.
Dated March 13, it said, among other things, that "no employee of the works progress administration shall at any time solicit contributions for any political party and evidence of such solicitation will be cause for immediate discharge."

The question of whether or not to contribute to any political party is a matter entirely for the voluntary decision of said employee."

Informed today that two WPA officials attached to the Peoria, Ill., district office had been quoted by a newspaper as stating "the WPA is strong for Dr. Bundenese and other candidates on the regular Democratic slate," a Hopkins spokesman said:

"The WPA is not backing any candidate. Relief is not in politics."

SUPERVISORS' STORY.

Chicago, March 18.—(AP)—The Quincy, Ill., Herald-Whip said Sunday that two WPA supervisors from the Peoria district office had told a reporter:

"Unless non-relief supervisors of WPA projects support the candidacy of Dr. Herman N. Bundenese for governor, they will be removed from their jobs."

The statements were made the Herald-Whip said, by J. Paul Madison and L. B. Jones. On Monday Madison said he had "no comment" when asked concerning the statements. He added that Jones also had no comment. James McElwee, district administrator, said the statements were untrue.

Madison was quoted by the Herald-Whip as saying:

"Too Much Heat On.
"The WPA is strong for Dr. Bundenese and other candidates on the regular Democratic slate. Unless certain employees are in sympathy with that slate, they will be removed and replaced by others who are in sympathy."

24 Known Dead: Heavy Property Loss: Worst Disaster Since 1889

Sleet, Snow, High Winds Increase Suffering

Williamsport, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—The Potomac river rose today beyond its high mark of the Johnstown flood. The stream at 2:15 P. M. reached a level of 40 feet, two feet more than its 1889 record. At Hancock, above here, the river also had passed its Johnstown mark and still was rising.

BULLETIN.

Johnstown, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—Waters of the Conemaugh river fell rapidly late today and the downtown streets of Johnstown were cleared of the surging torrents which inundated scores of buildings and took a toll of at least two lives.

George H. Fulmer, manager of the telephone exchange in the stricken city, reported the river was virtually back in its channel and only stagnant pools of water remained outside.

Unofficial estimates placed the property damage at beyond three million dollars.

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

Death and misery swept over the eastern states today as raging rivers rolled up the worst flood devastation on record in many areas.

At least 24 were reported dead in Pennsylvania, which suffered the greatest damage.

Two persons died in Vermont, two in Virginia, and at least one each in Maine and New York. A Georgia windstorm took two lives.

Tornado winds, sleet and sporadic snows increased the death list and suffering. Property damage mounted hourly into many millions of dollars.

Worst in History
The steel metropolis of Pittsburgh was inundated and virtually isolated by the surging Monongahela and Allegheny rivers, with flood stages the highest in history. Fire in the industrial area threatened to spread dangerously.

At Wheeling, W. Va., rivermen predicted 30,000 persons will be homeless by tomorrow, when the swollen Ohio river is expected to reach the highest flood stage in the city's history.

President Roosevelt ordered federal agencies to mobilize quickly for rescue work. Secretary of War Dern headed a committee to provide government equipment.

Pennsylvania was hardest hit. Swirling waters of the Conemaugh began to recede from Johnstown, Pa., but flood waters of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers rolled into Pittsburgh.

The flood left hundreds of persons homeless, filled the downtown "Golden Triangle," and virtually shut off the steel metropolis from the rest of the nation.

After the Allegheny rose to 44 feet, highest on record, fires broke out in the city's vast industrial area, adding to the destruction.

Chief of Police Harry Klink at Johnstown broadcast an appeal for CCC workers, National Guardsmen and state troopers to aid in clearing up the city and preventing looting.

APPEAL MOTION IN NESBIT MANDAMUS DELAYED

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Hearing on a state motion to appeal the mandamus order directing the certifying board to qualify Walter Nesbit of Belleville as a candidate for Democratic committee in the twenty-second district today was postponed until tomorrow to learn what action Governor Horner desires.

W. Edgar Sampson, attorney for Nesbit, obtained the delay when he questioned whether the governor, a member of the board, desired an appeal.

Assistant Attorney General John B. Harris filed notice of an appeal and made application for a writ of supersedeas yesterday shortly after Circuit Judge Victor Hemphill issued the mandamus order.

Replying to Sampson, Harris said he had no information that he was not to take an appeal.

It was reported by Nesbit's counsel that the governor intended to abide by the lower court's decision.

Nesbit's counsel argued that if a supersedeas were granted, its duration should be only three to five days, due to the shortness of time before the April 14 primary.

Fires, Explosions in Pittsburgh Area Follow Flood

Washington, March 18.—(AP)—A weather bureau warning that the Potomac river here tomorrow night would reach the highest stage since 1889 was a signal today for quick measures to protect government property.

Forty-five navy planes began leaving the Anacostia air station here for Hampton Roads, Va. Officials said they expected the local field to be submerged and that permanent hangars might be damaged.

Sandbag dikes to protect government buildings in the triangle between Capitol Hill, the White House and the Potomac were proposed. It was recalled that 47 years ago water flowed along several blocks of Pennsylvania avenue on the edge of this section.

Pittsburgh, March 18.—(AP)—At least seven persons were hurt and some were feared dead as an explosion and fire destroyed a factory building and a row of 11 houses in suburban Etna today.

Six to 10 feet of water trapped the occupants of the houses as flames spread from the Etna Forge & Bolt Company and swept over the homes.

Other industrial buildings were in the path of the fire, which still was raging.

First messenger reports from the Allegheny General Hospital where victims were brought were that fathers and mothers were separated from their children as they tried to find their way to safety.

None of those in the hospital was reported in a serious condition. John Kusevich, 32, one of them, expressed fears his wife and three children might have been caught in the flames.

Etna police said many persons leaped into flooded Union street as the fire raged on.

Unprecedented Water
The ever-increasing waters of the Allegheny river rose to the unprecedented stage of 42.6 feet in Pittsburgh. Flood stage is 27 feet.

Homes by the hundreds were isolated.

Fires added to the devastation as harassed fire fighters battled with flood and flames to save several industrial plants.

New deaths were reported hourly, with a total of 24 for the state of Pennsylvania, 15 of them from the devastated western Pennsylvania area.

Scarcely had firemen quelled a blaze in the plant of the crucible steel company in which five men were hurt when fires broke out in two other plants.

Fire swept through the Waverly Oil Works on the banks of the Allegheny in nearby Lawrenceville and threatened to spread to nearby buildings.

Oil Tanks Exploded
Oil tanks exploded with a roar heard throughout the community. Six flames brought out all available firemen.

Flaming oil spouted from the bursting tanks and set fire to nearby buildings of the Pittsburgh Spring Steel Company. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Embers were carried over the community and firemen were unable to reach the scene with their apparatus. Flood waters were high above the fire plugs.

Thousands of families were trapped in their homes and unable to leave. Thousands Homeless

Thousands throughout the metropolitan Pittsburgh area were homeless, carried to safety by more thousands of volunteers who increased their rescue efforts as the flood still rose.

The "golden triangle," containing some of the biggest and most valuable business structures in the city and for a century the heart of trade in western Pennsylvania, was 50 per cent inundated.

The swollen Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio spread their muddy currents eight blocks inward and business was virtually suspended.

Travel by bus, train or automobile was almost impossible. Airplane companies only were able to assure travelers they could get out of

Journal reported that when a reporter asked Madison about these statements he was told by Madison:

"I'm not saying I said them, and I'm not saying I didn't. There's too much heat on."

Both men made it clear, the Herald-Whip said, that their statements applied only to supervisory personnel, not to former relief clients now on WPA pay-rolls.

proposals, was flying by airplane from Berlin but was due too late for today's session of the council.

Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, went before the council with the declaration that the duty of the nations of Europe "is to preserve peace on a firm and enduring foundation."

Flatly Accused Germany

At the same time, however, he flatly charged Germany with having committed a treaty violation.

Eden said security and confidence had been severely shaken by Germany's actions, adding: "Germany has emphasized her aim for peace, but she should realize that the denunciation of treaties nullifies this aim."

"I have already stated before the council," said Eden, "that in the view of the British government a patient and incontestable breach of the Versailles treaty relating to the demilitarized zone has been committed."

"It is, therefore, in the opinion of His Majesty's government, right for the council to come to a similar conclusion and to convey this finding to the other signatory powers."

The foreign secretary declared that Great Britain's view was the Germany's breach of treaties "does not carry with it an imminent threat of hostilities and does not involve the immediate action provided for in the Locarno treaty."

French Panic-Stricken

Despite a violent storm of criticism, the British did not abandon their belief that a temporary neutral zone between the German and French military forces would materially aid the situation.

The French, who seemed virtually panic stricken by the British tendency to compromise with Germany, served notice that they were not prepared to enter into any negotiations with Germany until May—after the French and German parliamentary elections.

French sources declared that any Paris government agreeing to a joint Franco-German demilitarized zone, policed by the league, would sound its own death knell.

Clark Shaughnessy Jr. Developing Into Good Track Athlete

Chicago, March 18—(AP)—Clark Shaughnessy Jr., son of the University of Chicago football coach, apparently is going to develop into something of a track athlete, if he continues to show the form he displayed last night in the city high school league meet here.

Young Shaughnessy leaped 13 feet, one-half inches to smash the old league pole vault record by one foot, 6 1/2 inches. Then he won the 60 yard hurdles for his team, Hyde Park high, and placed second in the shotput.

He is expected to attend an eastern prep school next fall.

Under Military Rule

"At my own request," he said, "we are under military rule."

Throughout the east, communication lines, railroad and bus service was crippled or halted.

An amateur radio operator sent this cryptic message from Ithaca, one of the many upstate New York towns swept by overflowing rivers:

"Ithaca isolated. All wires down. Sleet. Flood water receding."

Telegraph and telephone wires throughout much of central New York state were torn down by last night's sleet storm, making a check-up of many localities impossible.

Many Leave Homes

Thousands of persons along the Ohio river near Wheeling, W. Va., left their homes when the waters rose to 40 feet, four feet above flood stage.

Up the Susquehanna, the danger was as acute as in and around Wilkes-Barre.

At Binghamton, New York, hundreds of families were evacuating their homes. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad suspended all train service into Binghamton when three feet of water flooded its right-of-way.

In many New York localities, the flooded rivers brought threats of greater damage and loss than was experienced in last July's serious inundations.

New England Devastated

New England, swept sporadically for more than a week by rampaging rivers, was widely devastated anew. The Farmington river carried away dozens of buildings after the collapse of the Greenwood dam in Connecticut. Loss of life was feared. State police ordered residents up and down the Farmington valley to vacate their homes.

The Potomac river receded at Cumberland, Md., but as the flood stage passed downstream, Hancock, below Cumberland, was covered by water as deep as nine feet in some streets. The town was completely cut off from all traffic.

OHIO VALLEY FLOODED

Columbus, O., March 18—(AP)—A devastating wall of flood waters swept through the industrial-rich upper Ohio river valley today, wrought untold property damage and sent thousands fleeing from their lowland homes.

While relief and Red Cross agencies prepared to aid sufferers in the worst Ohio valley flood since 1913, an army of highway workers battled to free north and north-eastern Ohio from the paralyzing grip of gale-swept snow.

Hundreds fled to higher ground in the East Liverpool and Steubenville areas. Marietta merchants began moving out stock and anticipated the entire business district would be inundated.

At Martins Ferry the stream was rising at the rate of half a foot an hour. It stood at 31.6 feet with flood stage at 36 feet. At Cincinnati the river was at 37.5 feet and mounting at the rate of two-tenths of a foot an hour.

Eight northeastern counties began clearing roads drifted with snow which isolated many communities yesterday.

Twenty-five army trucks carrying 110 men and officers en route from Fort Sheridan, Ill., to the east coast, were blocked near Ashland.

Mrs. Frank Knox of Chicago, wife of the Chicago Daily News publisher and Republican presidential possibility, remained overnight in Ellyria rather than risk becoming trapped in the drifts in her automobile.

LEGION SESSION TONIGHT

All members of Dixon post of the American Legion, as well as all Dixonites who are eligible for membership are urged to attend this evening's meeting of the post. WILL IS PROBATED

The will of the late Mrs. Rosa L. Zigler of Palmyra township, whose death occurred recently, was admitted to probate in the county court this morning. The will, which was dated July 7, 1924, leaves all of the property to three children, Minnie M., Marcus and Louis H. Zigler. The estate comprises lands and lots located in the vicinity of Wauconda both in Lee and Ogles counties. Minnie M. Zigler is appointed executrix of the estate.

Democracy Give Dinners

Faced with this story of increased spending and reduced income, the Democrats have turned to dinners and other fetes as a means of raising funds in addition to outright donations. They realized $300,000 from the nationwide series of Jackson Day dinners in January, and are now planning a similar money raising celebration of Jefferson's birthday.

Other developments in the political picture included a prediction by Gov. James M. Curley of Massachusetts that President Roosevelt will be re-elected no matter who the Republican nominee is.

The supporters of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas went ahead with their drive to nominate him at Cleveland in June. Six candidates for the Landon-pledged slate in California filed affidavits to qualify for the May 5 primary.

The Landon leaders said the entire slate of 44 would be ready to file by Saturday.

An announcement from western headquarters of the Republican national committee said Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown had been named director of women's work in the division. Harrison E. Spangler, western director, said the appointment inaugurates a drive to line up women in the region.

White, according to the News, said that Vallee called him a "nasty name."

White had called the meeting, according to the paper, to ask the cast to agree to a six-week shut down so that he could get rid of some costly contracts in defiance of an equity ruling.

Vallee's contract was not involved, the paper said, but when White broached his proposition, the crowd stepped forward and gave his "nasty" description of the producer.

$200 Damage to Roof Caused by Fire Here

The residence of M. H. Needham, 1219 Fourth street was considerably damaged by fire yesterday afternoon about 3:30 when sparks from a chimney set fire to the roof. The fire had burned some time before being discovered and an alarm turned in. Arriving at the scene the fire department turned a stream of water on the flaming roof and extinguished the flames, which were spreading rapidly. Damage estimated at about $200 was done to the property, which is covered by insurance.

RAISING FUNDS

While Donations to Republican Party Grow Surprisingly

Washington, March 18—(AP)—The intensity of the 1936 campaign was reflected today in figures showing both parties began the year spending about four times as fast as in 1932.

Figures compiled from committee reports for the two years showed also that the Republicans are collecting funds more rapidly than four years ago while the Democratic collections are slower.

Here is the way the figures line up:

During the first two months of 1932 the Democrats collected $60,000 in donations, while the Republicans got $53,000. During the first two months of this year the Democrats collected $49,000, while the Republicans got $261,000.

POKER AND TONGS
By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

"W" HEN will Americans wake up? asks a dear German friend, who writes to me as we used to talk to each other in student days—one using the poker and the other the tongs in our fire-side chat.

"If you ever get your eyes open," he goes on as usual, "and face facts, surely you will see that your charming philosophy of individual liberty about which you make so much ado is utterly out of date."

In fact, it is as dead as the Dodo, and it ought to be. It is a relic, a hang-over from the rationalism of the eighteenth century. As such it is interesting, but irrelevant in the world of today.

"In a world drawn together, jammed together, the traffic is terrific, and we must have regulatory legislation. But you Americans pass lights as well—you will not obey any kind of laws."

"Of course, your basic error is the idea that the individual is the thing, and liberty the be-all and end-all of life. No, the race, the community, the nation is the thing of supreme importance."

"Who dies, if Germany lives? Who lives, if Germany dies? Do you wonder that we give up liberty for loyalty, not as a sacrifice but as a sacrament? It gives life not only meaning, but ecstasy!"

How strange. From his point of view my philosophy of individual liberty, the sanctity of personality, and the worth of the soul, is an antique, an out-worn dogma of a time long gone by.

From my point of view, his philosophy is fanaticism, a primitivism run wild, the man lost in the mass, the deification of the herd-mind, a cruel coercive collectivism, turning the clock of time back.

To me the totalitarian state is a Leviathan, as Hobbes called it—a monster, if not a monstrosity—and its advent means the death of many of the most precious things won by our fathers.

The state supreme? No, over all is God the Eternal. The state belongs to the citizen, not the citizen to the state, as a cog in a machine, or a shirt in a parade. I'll keep my old, simple faith!

Mrs. R. M. Ferguson Addresses Phidians on Mohammedan Arts

The first of a series of papers on Mohammedan Decorative Arts was read by Mrs. R. M. Ferguson Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. G. Burnham before the members of the Phidian Art Club. The three classifications discussed by Mrs. Ferguson were viz., Miniature Painting, Calligraphy and Book-binding.

In a brief survey of Mohammedan Art the speaker enumerated the various historical influences upon art in general and emphasized the point that philosophy and religion provided little source of inspiration.

The Persian Art which is so exquisitely portrayed in miniature painting reveals that it is highly decorative in character and well-near perfect in harmony of color. The Persians excelled in Calligraphy and book-binding, combining in the latter both durability and beauty.

Mrs. Shaw, the president of the club, voiced the sentiment of the group when, at the close of the paper, she expressed her pleasure at having an artist interpret this particular subject.

Miss Clara Armstrong, program chairman for the coming year, announced that American Art would be the general topic for discussion if the committees present plans materialized.

During the social hour delicious refreshments were enjoyed. Mrs. W. D. Hart presided at the attractive tea table.

The next meeting of the Phidians will be held with Mrs. M. C. Keller, with Mrs. W. D. Hart giving the paper.

JUSTICE OR PURCHASE?

(Daily Oklahoman)

Recently returned from an "official" journey into the states of the upper Mississippi valley, a New Deal champion who incidentally holds a fairly attractive New Deal office concedes that Minnesota is lost to the New Deal forces and that the political course of Iowa is doubtful. According to this thoughtful spokesman the Iowa election result will depend entirely upon the number of checks distributed by Washington among the Hawkeye agrarians and the size of the checks aforesaid. If the number of checks and the amounts thereof are satisfactory, Iowa will cast a majority of her votes for a continuation of New Deal beneficence.

Manifestly there are several different ways of looking at this candid presentation of political possibilities. New Dealers as a rule will adhere to the position that stricken agriculture needs help sorely, that it deserves help abundantly, and that any largess received from Washington is demanded by the common justice which is supposed to govern this democratic nation. Forces fighting for agricultural equality have no doubt that any help extended by government is both just and honorable.

But others will view this process in a more critical light. They will see nothing but votes which are withheld until payment has been made. They will see a willingness to pay in public funds for a people's electoral support. They will see something which critical souls may characterize as government by bribery. What one school regards as justice to agriculture another school regards as the deliberate purchase of a popular election. And each school can marshal an impressive array of cogent arguments to support its particular view.

If this rather startling development teaches any lesson of lasting value, it teaches the supreme wisdom of clearing up the wreckage of depression as speedily as possible and withdrawing the government from the relief business at the earliest possible day. For wholesale relief has entirely too many possibilities of electoral debauchery. It creates too great a desire on the part of certain of its recipients to go right on receiving as a subsidy what originated as a human necessity. Careless souls may come to prefer perpetual government support to the blessedness of self help. They may reach the point where they are willing to sell their suffrage to the party which offers them the larger cash return. Herein is forecast the evil day when no man can be elected to office who refuses to purchase the support of the voter with funds from the public treasury. Manifestly the government is playing with fire when it distributes billions of dollars by agencies which are frankly and sometimes sordidly political.

It was a sorry trade if the country has lost or imperiled its soul for the sake of economic restoration. Of this great republic it might be said as the Master once said of the individual: "What shall it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Of what real profit would it be to the American republic to save itself from economic prostration by establishing government by bribery and by converting every election booth into an auction block whereon the suffrage of a once great people is offered for sale?

Perhaps it was impossible form the beginning for the country to administer relief on a large scale without exposing government to the dangers of general corruption. Probably the danger will endure as long as relief continues; probably the danger will grow instead of diminishing. Hence it will be the part of wisdom for the government to safeguard its relief program as much as possible from the danger of debauchery, to restore general prosperity as quickly as it possibly can be restored by government agencies, and to terminate general relief just as soon as it can be terminated without violating the mandates of common humanity. For it is not well for the country for elections to be decided by the amount of cash received by the voter.

GEORGIAN ARISTOCRACY

Death of Prince Serge Mdivani of injuries incurred in a polo game revives a legend that has grown about these so-called playboy princes. The Mdivani family hails from Georgia, a soviet possession lying between the Black and Caspian seas in the Caucasus region south of European Russia. When one of the czars of imperial Russia was seeking to extend his territory he won the allegiance of some of the representative inhabitants by offering titles of nobility to those who would swear fealty.

When it was time to determine who should have the titles, the czar honored those with the most pigs. The Mdivani family was blessed with enormous herds of pigs, so it got a title and much land. In addition to the pig that came from a title, oil was discovered on the Mdivani realms to further enrich the clan.

When the bolsheviks took control they ousted the family, took over the oil lands and made it very convenient and safe for the Mdivani princes to live elsewhere.

With the prerequisites of title gone and no money coming in from oil, we are led to believe that the boys had nothing left but attractive personalities, due to generations of culture and education. At any rate these lads were not classed exactly with the money kings of earth when they took attractive American heiresses to wed.

Georgia is noted for the beauty of its women and the strength and handsomeness of its men. Georgians of undiluted blood are popularly referred to as white Asiatics. Stalin, dictator of Russia, is a Georgian with a Mongolian strain of blood.

In medieval times frequent raids were made into the Caucasus for Georgian slaves, the young females being quoted at top prices in the market in Turkey and elsewhere. Some excellent oriental rugs are produced in the region, even today.

Lenin promised the peasants land and the workers equality and urged them to revolution and destruction of the middle class.

Earl Browder, secretary of the communist organization of America, was given radio time to present the aims of the communists and he urged the farmers and laborers to join in an assault upon the capitalistic system.

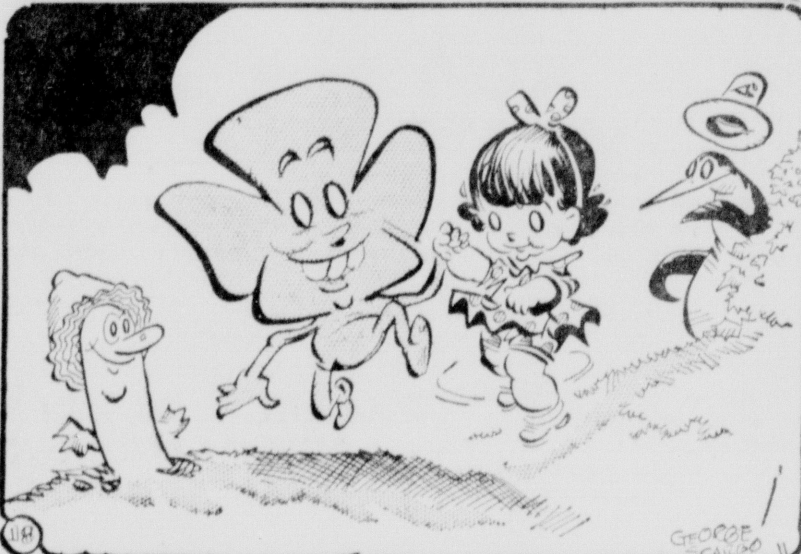

Professor Tugwell, in his notable California speech, urged the farmers and the laborers to unite in an assault upon the present economic system of the United States—without violence, of course.

THE TINYMITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The Tinymites crawled all around and kept their eyes upon the ground. "Aw, we will never find a four-leaf clover," Duncy said. "I'd like to have good luck. You bet! But I'm not sure that's what I'd get. The rest of you can keep on looking. I will snooze, instead." "Go on," snapped Doty. "We don't care, but we'll keep looking everywhere. You simply are a lazy lad. That's why you want to rest." "I don't know how you have much fun, because you seldom get things done. Why can't you be real peppy? That's what makes one feel the best."

Wee Duncy didn't answer. He was sound asleep as he could be. The cattail eyed him for a moment. Then he had a hunch. "I'll call some little ants and they upon wee Duncy's nose can play," exclaimed the cattail. "That will give a laugh to all the bunch." He found an ant hill right nearby. One of the ants said, "Sure, we'll try to pester that wee fellow." Then they started crawling round. Soon Duncy started to snore. Off of his face the wee ants tore. One of them said, "Oh, we just can't stand that awful sound."

Then pretty Doty shouted, "Hip hurray! I guess this is my lucky day. I've found a fourleaf clover. I will share my luck with all." The clover then began to grow, and Scouty loudly cried out, "Oh, I wonder how big it will get? At first, it was real small."

The clover grew to Doty's size, and Doty cried, "Look! It has eyes." "Of course I have," the clover said. "Come, Doty, dance with me." "Course Doty felt real safe and sound, so they joined hands and danced around. "I've found new friends," the clover said. "I'm happy as can be."

(Doty has some more luck in the next story.)

Property along the Passaic river in New Jersey, almost in the shadow of skyscrapers, was isolated by flood waters, as revealed in this airview. The great industrial sections of the New York metropolitan region were hard hit, when streams along which many of the great mills and factories are located went over their banks. Many other streams in the eight northeastern seaboard states also were swept by unprecedented spring thaw floods.

FULTON WILL CARRY NORTH STATE COLORS

Meets Paris Team in First Round State Meet

Champaign, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—First round drawings held the attention of the early arrivals for the 29th state high school basketball tournament which opens here tomorrow morning.

Extreme corners of the state will be represented in the first game when Fulton, from northwestern Illinois, plays Paris, located near the banks of the Wabash. This game will be a case of Fulton's offense, featuring Robert Larson, a guard who has scored more than 300 points this season, against Paris' ability to keep the pace it set in spilling favorites through the regional and sectional tournaments.

Joliet, beaten but once in 22 games, will play the second game against Mt. Pulaski. Two fast-breaking fives, Danville and Centralia, clash in the first game of the Thursday afternoon session. If the winner is not worn to a frazzle by the swift play, it should go a long way in the journey.

Moline Is Surprise Team.

Moline, surprise conqueror of East Moline in the sectional, goes against West Aurora's tall team. Each club has lost seven games, and played its best in winning a sectional, so this tilt, like many others is looked upon as a tossup. The Johnston City-Proviso-Maywood contest should go a long way toward deciding the next state champion because the survivor must play either Vandalia or Ziegler in a tough quarter-final game. Johnston City and Vandalia are the south's best bets for a state championship, and one or the other must get by Proviso if the title is to return to Little Egypt for the first time since 1929.

A Big Twelve conference rivalry between Peoria Manual and Decatur will feature the penultimate game of the first round, while the last tilt matches Hull's scrappy cagers against New Phillips, Chicago Negro team that has won 18 of its 20 starts.

DAILY HEALTH

PNEUMONIA SERUM

Approximately 86 per cent of all cases of lobar pneumonia are caused by pneumonia germs. Of these germs, 32 types have been identified. Of these, types I and II cause nearly 60 per cent of all lobar pneumonia cases.

For the treatment of types I and II, effective, specific serums are available. The early and adequate use of such serums substantially reduces the death rate in these two types. Several of the other types of pneumonia germs, specifically types VII, VIII and XIV, can also be treated effectively with specific serums.

Results have been most satisfactory in the serum treatment of pneumonias of types I and II. There is as yet no effective serum treatment for pneumonia of type III.

The possibility of treating lobar pneumonia with specific anti-pneumococcal serum is the result of laboratory studies and animal experiments begun more than 25 years ago. Today, thanks to the work of a number of European and American scientists, there are available purified and highly concentrated, effective anti-pneumonia serums.

The pneumonia serums are derived from the blood of horses which have been infected with pneumonia germs of a specific type.

Pneumonia serum is specific in character. Each is effective only against a given type of germ. Pneumonia due to type I germ can be effectively treated only with the serum derived from horses exposed to type I germ. The same is true for type II. Frequent use is made of a serum mixture effective against types I and II.

The earlier serum treatment is instituted, the more favorable the prospects of recovery. However, serums are not available for every type of pneumonia germ, young children cannot be treated suitably with serum, and individuals with a history of asthma and hay fever (and those sensitive to horse's serum) cannot be safely treated with pneumonia serum.

Father Coughlin's Shrine Razed by Fire

Flames raging through Father Charles E. Coughlin's original Shrine of the Little Flower at Royal Oak, Mich., left only these ruins of the $30,000, ten-year-old frame structure where the radio priest rose to national fame in the last decade. Thousands of spectators thronged to the scene of the early morning blaze, believed due to defective wiring. The expensive organ and the broadcasting equipment in the shrine were destroyed. Firemen prevented spread of flames to the new $750,000 shrine, the dome of which may be seen in the left background.

PENS

There is no satisfaction like that derived from sitting down to an uncluttered desk, clean blotter, nice white paper, and best of all a pen which will really write.

Pens are like people. Some are clear, precise and business like. Some are heavy, a bit unmanageable, and scraggly around the edges. Others are beautiful to look at, but not a bit practical. You will find that pens usually typify their owners. Some people have more than one pen. This is not wise, because one's very thoughts, ways of expressing oneself change upon using a different pen.

You may sit down to write a cheery letter of condolence to a sick friend, and by mistake use your ugly, black business letter pen. The result no doubt, would be tragic. You say, you lost your happy pen. Well if you just had one pen, used for all types of writing, this thing would not have happened. Even if you lost it, at least you would not have on your hands a literary failure. And so on into the deep, dark night.

Paul Dean Gives Mustang Hurlers Several Pointers

Dallas, Tex., March 18.—(AP)—Paul Dean still was a holdout today, but the sight of Southern Methodist baseball candidates in action was too much for him.

The St. Louis Cardinal pitcher asked permission "to workout awhile if I won't be in the way." Taking his first workout of the year, Dean threw long enough to warm up his arm and then went to the outfield where he spent an hour chasing fly balls.

He also gave the Mustang pitchers pointers on how to hold a Dean fast ball.

DEATH RESULTS IN CLOSING RED LIGHT DISTRICT

Decatur, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—John King, 43, brokerage house manager, died early today from a bullet wound received Saturday in a scuffle outside what police said was a disorderly house.

Kenneth Ogbin, 29, one-time candidate for sheriff, held on a charge with assault with intent to kill, was expected to be indicted for the shooting today by a grand jury which delayed adjournment pending the outcome of King's wounds.

H. J. Schepper, chief of police, said Ogbin admitted the shooting and claimed it was in self-defense. Held as material witnesses were Alice Hutchins, alias Tucker, reputedly the proprietor of the house near where the shooting occurred, and Joyce Cook and Betty Thompson, described by Schepper as inmates.

Schepper said the shooting had resulted in closing down Decatur's segregated district, which figured in a grand jury investigation earlier in the year.

King had been a resident of Decatur for more than a year, coming from Chicago. He is survived by a widow and one son.

PLAYOFF SERIES FOR RANGERS IS COMING NEARER

Must First Reckon With The Boston Bruins Sunday

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Life, playoff life for his team, hung by a tenuous thread as Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey league, sat in the dressing room after last night's game, a cigarette in one hand and a mug of beer in the other.

His team had just conquered the Chicago Blackhawks 4-2 to remain one point behind the third place Boston Bruins who defeated the Montreal Canadiens 1-0 in Boston. The Bruins play the Toronto Maple Leafs tomorrow night and if they win they will clinch the playoff berth. If they lose they will have to either beat or tie the Rangers in Boston Sunday night to oust the latter from the favored circle.

St. Patrick's Night

It was St. Patrick's night and Lester of the clan was happy. He wore a green tie and there was a big green carnation in his buttonhole. Steam was pouring from the shower room and perspiration was oozing from the high Patrick brow as he gulped his beer.

"You know fellows," he said, "I'm confident the Maple Leafs are going to lick Boston on Thursday night and if they do I'm telling you here and now we will lick the Bruins on Sunday night and grab that playoff berth."

Meanwhile the Montreal Maroons virtually clinched first place in the International division by downing the second place team, the Maple Leafs, 2-1.

In the third and last game on the first night's card, Our Lady of Victory, of Lackawanna, N. Y., will meet St. Anthony of Okmulgee, Okla.

Xavier, which is in the national tourney for the seventh time in the event's 13-year history, won 15 games and lost three this season. Seeking its crown will be such

SEARCY DESIRES LAW TO EMBARGO FOREIGN GOODS

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Governor Horner today had a request from Senator Earl B. Searcy, Springfield Republican, to call a special session of the legislature to enact an embargo against foreign made goods.

A candidate for auditor, Searcy made his proposal in a letter in which he particularly assailed the sale of American flags not made in the United States.

He urged the governor to call a session to consider:

"A law prohibiting within Illinois, the sale of American flags not made in the United States."

"A sweeping investigation of the sale of other Japan-made articles in Illinois, with the view of their prohibition so far as possible."

"Memorialization of the congression of the United States to join in the move to protect American labor against these cheap importations."

Here and There In Sports World

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

Associated Press Sports Writer

(AP)—Begins to look like the real race in the American league will be for fifth place. . . . No less than three managers are saying the worst they can do is lead the second division. . . . Bucky Harris of Washington will be disappointed if his team doesn't do even better. . . . Jimmy Dykes thinks his White Sox are a sure bet and Rogers Hornsby says it's in the cards for the Browns to finish right behind the leaders. . . . All of which is a great break for Connie Mack. . . . If three clubs wind up in fifth place, he will be sure of sixth. . . . No need to say that is beyond his wildest dreams.

The situation over in the National is a bit different. . . . Here we are going to have trouble finding a club to finish last. . . . Old Bill McKechnie swears his Boston Bees are going out of the cellar for keeps. . . . And Bill isn't the guy to do a lot of popping off. . . . Jimmie Wilson of the Phillies is just as sure his team will not succeed the Bees. . . . Casey Stengel can't see anything worse for his Dodgers than sixth place. . . . And Charlie Dessen at Cincinnati has his eye on the first division. . . . There you are boys. . . . It looks like just the spot for a last place pool.

Don't take Bobby Jones too seriously when he says that string of 68's and 69's was due to luck. . . . Those who saw him down here says he is red hot. . . . Remember that when the Augusta Invitational tournament rolls around. . . . Florida's sunshine not only improved Patty Berg's golf, but it made her about the most sought after speaker for knife and fork clubs.

Every day she's in demand. . . . No wonder she's picked up 18 pounds in weight. . . . The Broadwayites around Miami roared when they read Madison Square Garden was trying to build up old Primo Camera as a summer opponent for Jimmy Braddock. . . . And the loudest laughter was little Joe Gould. . . . "Louis or nothing" still is his theme song.

Auditor Barrett Compiling With Order

Springfield, Ill., Mar. 18.—(AP)—State Auditor Edward J. Barrett announced today through his office here that he had complied with the recent House resolution to prepare a list of state employees for public inspection.

"This list has been prepared as fast as it was humanly possible to get it done," Barrett said. "There was some delay, because of the fact that some of the state code offices did not submit their payrolls to this office until February 14. Since that time, my office has worked day and night to get the list ready."

"The unusual pressure on the office because of the tremendous number of warrants required by the Illinois Relief Commission has made it very difficult to get this list out as early as has been done."

STORIES IN STAMPS
By I. S. Klein

GODDESS OF WAR AND WISDOM

JUST before Metis, goddess of wisdom, was to give birth to a child, her husband, the great god Zeus, swallowed her! And so, when the time of birth arrived, Hephaestus cleft the head of Zeus and out sprang the child in full armor.

By this legendary beginning, the goddess Athena was endowed with the power of her father and the wisdom of her mother. As goddess of war, she was distinct from Mars, for her wars were always just. She could hurl thunderbolts, prolong the life of man, and foretell the future. Athens made her its patron goddess and built to her what is perhaps the most famous of all Greek temples and one of the most beautiful examples of ancient Greek architecture still extant.

When Bellerophon was sent to slay the dread Chimera, Athena tamed the flying horse, Pegasus, so that he might ride it. Appropriately the new seven drachma stamp in the recent mythological series of Greece presents this famous goddess holding the bridle of Pegasus.

Flood Clutters Highways With Chunks of Floe Ice

First closed to all but boat traffic by the overflow from flooded Creek Locks at Rosendale, N. Y., this road was left impassable by the huge blocks of ice left behind when the water receded. Thawing of the vast accumulations of ice and snow of which the chunks are fragments is largely to blame for the food conditions that took more than 10 lives and did extensive damage in eight northeastern seaboard states.

The judges of the contest were: Miss Virginia Grant, instructor, dramatic art, Rockford College, and Mrs. Mildred Freburg Berry, professor in speech at Rockford College. is any oil any different?

Different because it's alloyed

We don't mean one of those "talking point" differences. We mean a real difference. Alloying Germ Processed oil goes beyond refining and re-refining. After every harmful element is cleaned out, the patented Conoco Germ Processing element is scientifically put in.

That's what brings you this alloyed oil, with its strange attachment for pistons, cylinders, and all other engine parts—including every known type of bearing. All these parts really become oil-plated!

This oil-plating is extra. It's a plus—added to the tougher, more slippery, heat-beating Germ Processed oil film. You've got this high-durability oil film, sliding on thoroughly oil-plated surfaces, and so you're that much farther from wear and noise.

You're facing hotter days and harder runs. Out with dirty winter oil! Only the Conoco man can change you—quickly—to Germ Processed, the alloyed oil. Continental Oil Company.

Rochelle—The Conger Auto Supply of Dixon, operated by Conger & Schrader, will open a branch store here on or about March 27 in the Johnson building. The local store will be under the management of Arthur Schrader.

The firm will handle standard brands of auto accessories for Fords and Chevrolets as well as Gillette tires and batteries. They are jobbers as well as retailers and will feature popular prices.

The spelling bee, sponsored by the Rochelle Business and Professional Men's Association, will be held on April twenty-fourth. In checking the former date set for the event, it was found that it would interfere with the Lenten services being held in the church at that time.

The letters announcing the spelling contest are going out to the rural schools in Ogle, Lee and DeKalb counties this week.

This year the preliminary contest will be written, eliminating all but fifteen of the highest who will participate in the final oral contest later on the same evening. This will enable all students, teachers and patrons to see all of the exhibits, demonstrations and the program being given in their honor.

The Anchor Bible class will meet at the home of Mrs. Bernard Baker Tuesday afternoon, March 17. The Methodist and Presbyterian churches will unite in holding their Easter sunrise service, Sunday, April 12. The service will be held in the Methodist church this year.

County Judge William Leech of Dixon addressed members of the Ogle County Young Republicans organization at a banquet held here Thursday evening on "Americanism and the Constitution of the United States." The meeting was attended by more than 200 and included many candidates for office at the April primaries.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

TIGERS WILL BE TOUGHER DURING YEAR

Addition of Simmons Makes Detroit Almost Sure Bet

Lakeland, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—It's going to be some job to hold that Tiger.

Since the Chicago Cubs attempted to cage him in last fall's World series, the Tiger from Detroit has grown several wide stripes that promise to make him even stronger and more ferocious as he stalks the American League jungles in search of his third big pennant feast in as many hunts.

The widest new stripe is Al Simmons, who seems to have found his old self. You wouldn't know the famous "Milwaukee Duke" this spring. Instead of pinning and fretting as he did last season with Chicago, where his batting average dropped to a new low of .267, Al looks like the Al of his old days with the Athletics when he pounded the ball at a .390 clip. In fact, Manager Mickey Cochrane, the champion worrier of all baseball, isn't even worrying about him. He's convinced Al will hit $75,000 worth, the amount Detroit gave the White Sox for his contract, during the coming season.

Hitting Outfield
If Simmons comes through, the Tigers will have a strong hitting outfield for the first time in years. In their successful pennant drives in 1934 and '35, the Tigers had only one .300 hitter in the outfield. Cochrane has converted Chester Laabs, a fine looking and hard hitting rookie from Fort Wayne, Ind., from an infielder to an outfielder in the event the veteran world series hero, Goose Goslin, has a bad year. With Al Simmons, Goslin and Pete Fox all going strong, Cochrane's outfield worries would be over.

The rest of the lineup probably will be the same as that which won the world title except that Don Ross, rookies from Beaumont, may oust Marvin Owen from his third base job. Ross, who acts and fields like Owen, is regarded as one of the best rookie finds of the season.

Mickey Likes Rookie
Hank Greenberg is a cinch to take over the first basing when he signs but Cochrane is so impressed with another rookie, Rudolph York from Beaumont, that scribbles with the team expect him to let him play the opening game if for no other reason than to show big Hank that York is a qualified replacement.

Postponed Game With Mendota Has Been Cancelled

Owing to the lateness of the season the postponed basketball game between Dixon high school and Mendota will not be played, according to Athletic Director A. C. Bowers.

The status of the Dixon high lightweights who had a chance to the Sterling for the championship by defeating Mendota, will be settled at a meeting of the N. C. I. conference officials to be held later. At present both Dixon's and Sterling's lightweights have lost only one game, but the Mendota tilt remained on the local schedule.

Mendota Calls In Suits.
As Dixon heavyweights progressed into the sectional tournament and continued winning, Mendota, not wishing to allow the interference of basketball with the coming track season, ordered all suits in and basketball discontinued for the year.

As a reward for going into the sectional tournament finals against West Aurora, the basketball team was permitted a trip to Champaign anyway as part of the vast throng that will see the state tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Elden Auker, General Crowder and Roxie Lawson will comprise the "big five" pitching staff at the start. Clarence (Red) Phillips, who won 20 and lost 11 for Beaumont last season, is rated as the best of the young hurlers. Phillips was with the Tigers for a short time in 1934.

Madison Co. Towns Without Relief Fund

Edwardsville, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Most Madison county townships lacked funds today to meet the relief burden which will soon devolve upon them, a meeting of the county board of supervisors disclosed. Township meetings will be held April 7 to discuss the problem.

NEWS FROM BASEBALL CAMPS

Associated Press Sports Writers Tell of Activities of Major League Stars and Rookies.

Winter Garden.—Dick Lananah, former Capital sandlotter and now a Senator's rookie pitcher, had a bad time of it against the Albany slugger who nicked him for six runs in two innings of their game yesterday. He passed seven batters.

Pasadena.—Joe E. Brown, the movie star who used to cavort on the diamond himself, took the White Sox on a sightseeing tour after their workout yesterday. The Sox went through a two-hour workout before starting off as guests of the comedian.

San Antonio.—Manager Charlie Grimm of the Cubs named rookie southpaw Wesley Flowers and the veteran Charley Root to divide the pitching chores today as the Cubs attempted to make it two straight over Pittsburgh.

Orlando.—Mickey Cochrane's Tiger rookies are doing all right for themselves these days. Buddy Bates, Gil English and Don Ross have been, showing plenty of stuff in the field and are giving the apple some long rides.

San Antonio.—The Pirates were out for revenge today for the 3-1 licking they took from the Cubs yesterday. Woody Jensen was the star. Clarence (Red) Phillips, who won 20 and lost 11 for Beaumont last season, is rated as the best of the young hurlers. Phillips was with the Tigers for a short time in 1934.

Bradenton.—Lyle Judy, rookie base running flash and understudy to Frankie Frisch, has been sent to St. Louis by the Cards for examination of his shoulder, hurt this winter in an automobile accident. Both the Cards and the Yanks went through yesterday's game at St. Petersburg without making a change in the infield or outfield.

West Palm Beach.—Rogers Hornsby was expected to start Leroy Mahaffey, former Athletic pitcher, against his old teammates when the Browns face them today at Fort Myers. Hornsby gave his pitchers a long workout picking runners off the bases yesterday. He holds up Paul Andrews and Jack Knott as the outstanding exponents of this art.

Fort Myers.—The Athletics play host to the Browns today with Pinky Higgins, who came to terms yesterday, slated to see service on third base for at least part of the game. Manager Mack says Higgins probably will hit fifth this season. The leadoff man is undecided but Moses, Puccinello and Johnson probably will bat second, third and fourth, respectively.

Winter Haven.—John Pezzullo,

Joe Bowman and Johnson are slated to hurl for the Phillies against the Dodgers today. Jimmy Wilson said he would be glad to trade Curt Davis to the Cubs but he would have to get Chuck Klein and plenty of cash.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—It looks as if American Leaguers would have to be wary of trying to advance on flies to the Yankees' outfield this season. Not only is rookie Joe Di Maggio throwing 'strikes' from center, but George Selkirk threw out two Cardinals at the plate on singles to right in yesterday's exhibition.

Clearwater.—The statistics show that Jimmy Jordan from Paw Creek, N. C., is the leading swatter of the Dodgers this far in the springtime whirl. He has stepped to the plate ten times and collected five hits, and if he keeps that up he will be the darling of Flat-bush.

Pensacola.—Hank Leiber has pitched his tent directly across the street from the Giants. Nearly everyone says it won't be long now. . . . He weighs 203 pounds, looks in the pink of condition and says he's eager to get a hefty length of hickory in his hand—if Bill Terry will only capitulate to his salary demands.

Sarasota.—The Reds were here today for their return game with the Boston Red Sox. Al Hollingsworth and Lee Stine were scheduled to pitch and Lombardi was expected to be in uniform. His contract signing is imminent. The game is the final meeting for the two.

New Orleans.—Manager Steve O'Neill of the Indians says pitcher George Blacholder, veteran right hander, will be one of the Tribe's greatest assets this year. "It will be a new experience for Blacholder to pitch for a winning ball club and I won't be surprised if he becomes one of the big surprises of the league," the manager says.

St. Petersburg.—The Boston Bees were happy today, having beaten the Tigers on Monday and the Reds yesterday. Wally Berger batted in four runs in yesterday's game, with two doubles and a single in four times at bat.

Sarasota.—Joe Cronin is going to use Wes Ferrell, Fred Ostermueller and Johnny Marcum on the mound against the Reds today. The manager indicated he wouldn't use any of his top notch moundsmen against American league teams in exhibition games. He doesn't want to give the opposition a review of their stuff.

CUNNINGHAM IS AMERICA'S MAN TO BEAT

Losses To Venzke Did Not Lower His Prestige

NOTE: This is the third of a series of stories on American Olympic track and field prospects, written by the sports editor of the Associated Press in collaboration with the country's foremost track and field coaches.)

BY ALAN GOULD
New York, March 18.—(AP)—So far as America is concerned, Glenn Cunningham remains the "man to beat" in the Olympic 1500 meters—the "metric mile."

This, at least, is the consensus of our foremost track and field coaches, who do not consider that this winter's developments, including a series of setbacks for the world mile record-holder, indicate Cunningham is on the down-grade.

To the contrary it is their view that the great Kansan has "rated" himself carefully and purposely, with the Olympic tryouts and the Berlin games as his main objectives. Cunningham himself confirmed this opinion after out-sprinting his two indoor rivals, Gene Venzke and Joe Mangan, in the fantastically-run Columbian mile last Saturday night.

The explanation for Cunningham's defeats in most of the winter's big races is not that Glenn has slipped but that Gene and Joe have improved tremendously. Until the history-making Wanamaker mile at the Millrose A. A. games there wasn't the slightest hint that Mangan had a 4:11 performance in his system, with Venzke at his heels. Not since 1932 has Venzke flashed the form that carried him to a world record victory over Cunningham in the National A. U. 1500 meter championship. Glenn himself was inside his own record for that event.

Can Run Faster
Just how, you may ask, does all this tend to brighten Cunningham's chances of being America's No. 1 bidder for honors in the Olympic classic? The answer, to quote Lawson Robertson of Pennsylvania, the Olympic head coach, is that Glenn, at top form, "can run a faster quarter mile or a faster half mile than any of his rivals."

Venzke's dazzling come-back, nevertheless, is the Olympic year's high-spot. The future foot-racer of Penn's popular picture runner will be followed with special interest because he was frustrated in his quest for international honors in 1932, following a similarly great indoor season. Cunningham was Venzke's nemesis then and for three subsequent years but Gene turned the tables in spectacular fashion after trailing Glenn in 22 out of 23 races.

The fact is Uncle Sam may suffer from an embarrassment of riches in picking his three 1500 meters entries for the Olympics. Bill Bonthron, the former Princeton captain whose cyclonic finishes made foot-racing history in 1933 and 1934, is training conscientiously for a comeback. Tiger Bill abstained from all indoor racing, on the advice of his coach, Matty Geis, in order to point exclusively for the Olympic trials.

It appears one of this quartet could shift to the 5,000 meters, where the U. S. A. has had little talent and less luck in recent Olympiads. But each is intent upon the "metric mile," which America has not won since Mel Sheppard led the field at London in 1908, and it's certain to be a hot fight.

DIXON CAGERS TO BE GUESTS OF ELKS CLUB

Went Further Than Any Other Dixon Basketball Team

In appreciation of Dixon high school's great basketball team which went into the sectional tournament finals against West Aurora last Saturday night, the Elks lodge No. 779 and H. C. Warner will entertain the team at a dinner in the Elks' clubrooms next Tuesday evening at 6:30. The public is invited and reservations may be made with H. C. Warner, Walter Fallstrom or William Nixon, Sr.

Dixon's team went farther in tournament competition this year than any other local high school quint has gone in the past, when it defeated DePue in the semifinal of the DeKalb tournament 28 to 17 to enter the final bracket against West Aurora. After playing a team which far exceeded them in height, on even terms for the three quarters, the Purple and White lads finally succumbed to a final quarter drive by the West Aurorians, who won 34-27 and enter the state tournament on Thursday against Moline.

Statistics Being Compiled
Statistics on the Dixon team which are now being compiled by Kenneth Barnhart, manager, will be published later. The record shows only two losses in eighteen games.

Athletic Director Arthur Bowers said today that Fred Padgett, a former Dixon high school track athlete who is now enrolled at Drake University in Des Moines, Ia., last Saturday won third place in the National Intercollegiate track and field meet two mile event at Drake. Padgett was known for his ability in the distances while in high school.

WHAT THE NEWS WAS AROUND DIXON IN YEARS GONE BY

50 YEARS AGO

Dr. Everett who was very ill last evening is better today.

Mrs. Nicholas S. Davies passed away at her home at 7 o'clock this morning, aged 74 years.

Students at Dixon college as a rule keep up with the fashion. The latest is the "Dutch measles." They all seem to take them about the same style.

25 YEARS AGO

President H. G. Reynolds of the Reynolds Wire company today announced plans for doubling the capacity of the plant by the erection of a $50,000 modern factory addition.

10 YEARS AGO

A township high school for Dixon has been proposed as the only apparent solution for the crowded conditions now prevailing.

was spent by all other administrations from George Washington to Woodrow Wilson, and the spending is still going on at the rate of $13,000 every minute of the night and day. For every dollar that that the government can take in, it is spending two."

Briefly, Glenn discussed the more important planks of the democratic platform commenting on the abuses of each. Referring to the unemployment situation he commented:

Where are Promised Jobs?

"It has been promised that out of this new deal would grow a job for every man or woman seeking employment. And yet, today, there are some nine to ten million people unemployed, notwithstanding the hundreds of millions of dollars which have been gathered from the taxpayers or borrowed, to possibly be repaid labor, which have been thrown into the situation with reckless abandon, in the effort to 'prime the pump' of private enterprise. Notwithstanding these expenditures, the 'pump' has not been primed and the democrats admit that a further and more extensive program must follow.

"Alien Communists by the hundreds, have been apprehended in their violent and unlawful attempts to foster riots, destroy property, inflame the people and break down our form of government, but not one has been deported—perhaps because the ships are filled by the New Dealers on their annual pilgrimage to Russia.

Destroyed Foodstuffs

"When 10 million American citizens have been out of work, stricken by poverty and unemployment, their families hungry and with nothing in their kitchens to cook, it has been the deliberate policy of this administration to destroy foodstuffs, plow under corn and wheat and cotton, kill pigs and cattle, and to destroy their carcasses. Over six million pigs have been destroyed. When the consumers of the country have looked about desperately in an effort to obtain clothing and food for their families, it has been the deliberate purpose of the administration

D. 1936, as the week within which the sentence should be executed in the manner provided by law; and

WHEREAS, Harold G. Hoffman, Governor of New Jersey, on the fifteenth day of January, A. D. 1936, did cause to be granted to the said BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN, a reprieve for a period of thirty days, which said time expired on the fifteenth day of February, A. D. 1936, and the said cause now ceasing to exist; and

WHEREAS the said BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN is now held and confined by you in the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton, awaiting the further order of this Court in the matter of said judgment had and affirmed as aforesaid;

NOW, THEREFORE, pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, I, THOMAS W. TRENCARD, Presiding Judge of the Hesterdon County Court of Oyer and Terminer, do hereby appoint the week commencing Monday, the thirteenth (30) day of March, A. D. 1936, as the week within which such sentence of death must be executed in the manner provided by law and hereby command you to execute said sentence upon some day within the week so appointed, and this shall, under the statutes of this State, be your sufficient warrant therefor.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this nineteenth day of February, A. D. 1936.

ATTEST:

Thomas W. Trenchard
Presiding Judge of the Hesterdon County Court of Oyer and Terminer.

Clerk of the Hesterdon County Court of Oyer and Terminer.

When Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey allowed the deadline for a "legal" reprieve for Bruno Hauptmann to pass without ordering another stay, the convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby at last, as symbolized above, faced squarely the stern words of Justice Trenchard's sentence condemning him to die in the electric chair. Unless startling new evidence is unearthed, Hauptmann appears doomed to electrocution in the death house at Trenton during the week of March 30—probably Tuesday night, March 31.

to raise the price of every necessity that they require, thereby adding to the crushing burden of dire poverty.

"The New Deal was to do away with monopoly. But, monopoly has flourished under it as never before and to the detriment and destruction of small independent business and industry. Under it, the huge accumulations of capital and business have combined to destroy their small competitors and to inflict outrageous prices upon the consumers. They have been able to do as a result of the suspension of the anti-trust laws.

"The president asks what rights have been taken away under his New Deal. May I cite the following few among many:

"Contracts of the government have been cancelled without warning and without cause.

"Freedom of the press has been seriously menaced.

"Every holder of a bond, note, insurance policy, building and loan contract, and every other form of indebtedness, has had its value arbitrarily reduced 41 per cent through the deflation of the dollar from 100 cents to 59 cents.

"Persons having moneys due them and directly needing it have been prevented from enforcing the terms of their contracts.

"Banks have been required to sell stock to the R. F. C. and to elect at their head those proposed to them by the government contrary to the wishes of the stockholders.

"Attacks on Constitution. Attacks, the speaker said, are being constantly made upon the constitution—upon the fundamentals of our form of government and upon our courts. If the first assaults upon the Constitution are successful we can expect others to follow in rapid succession. Well may we fear that the Supreme Court will be denied authority to declare acts of congress unconstitutional—and thus the executive branch, dominating the legislative branch, passing the laws it desires and without the check of the judicial branch of the government. When that day comes the day of the dictator is here.

"And so I say, the Republican party is needed now because strange voices and strange theories permeate the national capitol. Dreamers, theorists, impractical planners, inexperienced economists sit in high places in the government. Invested with much power, they are constantly reaching out for more, constantly seeking to influence the highest power in the government to wholly abandon the processes which have made America great and free and to substitute therefor the wild experiments which have failed in every country where they have been tried and have subtracted from and stable, is a speculative, changing measure. Forty-one million dollars within a year has been illegally extorted for code enforcement under an unconstitutional law. Government extravagance replaces governmental economy. Division of governmental authority—primary purpose of the writers of the Constitution—is set aside and held for naught. The rights, powers and duties of the respective states are steadily overcome and concentrated in Washington.

"The political situation has changed within the last three months. The people realize and feel that the wild course of extravagance will destroy the country. During the last 30 days this feeling has grown and increased until I am satisfied that Illinois will elect a Republican administration and that President Roosevelt will be defeated.

Pay Day Is Here

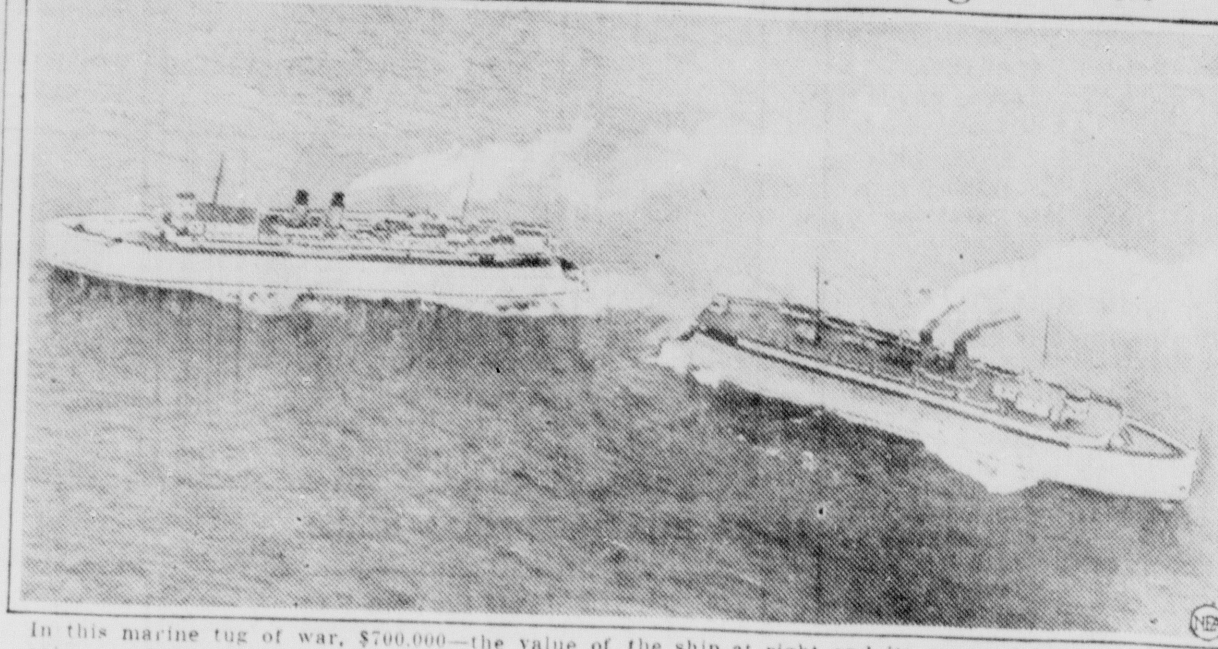

"Pay day is here now. The wise men are in Washington at this minute, seeking ways and means to extract more money from the taxpayers. The present debt will require at least three-quarters of a century to be repaid.

"For a moment, let us view the liquor situation. The Democrats told us that if elected they would bring beer and liquor back and force the saloon out in front. Well, from the actions and deportment of the taverns, beer parlors and cocktail saloons, they have put the saloon out in front without any doubt. If the present wild liquor orgy is permitted to continue unchecked by tavern keepers, brewers and distillers, they will bring back upon their own heads the public rebuke they so thoroughly deserve."

In closing his remarks, the candidate outlined his platform in which he urged the lower cost of government, municipal, state and national, with lower taxes and thus afford relief to the citizen taxpayer, sound money and a stable dollar, opposed to repudiation and liquidation and for drastic economy in federal expenditures.

With the protection that is being given the giant Sequoia trees of California, it is possible that they may live to be 10,000 years old.

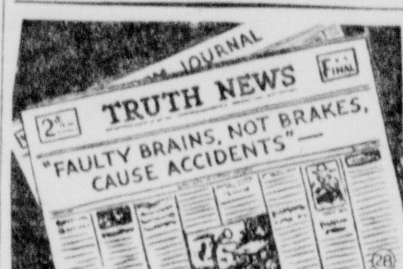

Valuable Ferry Is Prize in Lake 'Tug of War'

In this marine tug of war, $700,000—the value of the ship at right and its cargo of lumber—was the prize as the car ferry Ontario 2, held fast for nine days on a rocky shoal in Lake Ontario near Rochester, N. Y., was towed free into deep water by its sister ship, Ontario 1, shown at left. This picture was snapped from a plane just a moment after the tug of war began.

FAULTY BRAKES.

It is said that Will Rogers had the brakes on his car tested every day of the year. Is there any reason why you should be less cautious?

You can test them yourself. Before going half a block in the morning make a severe test by throwing out the clutch and applying the brakes. If possible, select a dry spot for this test. If the brakes are not operating properly, your very first stop should be the garage. It is folly to put this off.

"Faulty brakes" are given as the cause for innumerable automobile smashups, but in 99 cars out of 100 the fault was not with the brakes but with the driver who knew they were faulty but failed to have them fixed.

NEWS of the CHURCHES

The mid-week service at the Brethren church is being conducted by Sunday school classes of the church during the Lenten season and have been giving some splendid programs. Tonight the service will be conducted by the Go-Getters class which is taught by Mrs. Ed Holbrook. All members and friends of the church are invited.

BRETHREN CHURCH.

The members and friends of the Brethren church will be pleased to know that Bishop and Mrs. A. D. M. Dick of India will be their guests and speakers at the church Friday night at 7:30. Mr. and Mrs. Dick recently returned from India on furlough after serving ten years in India as missionaries. This is their third visit to the homeland since they began their work in India. Both are good speakers and their message, fresh from the foreign field, will be appreciated at this time when so many things of interest to the world are taking place in the east. An opportunity will be given for questions by those who attend the service regarding conditions in the east. Mr. and Mrs. Dick will only be in this part of the state a few days and the local Brethren church feels very fortunate in securing their services at this time, and urge that a good attendance be present Friday night. A cordial welcome is extended to everyone.

TRAFFIC TIPS

Illinois Division of Highways

IN CASE OF ACCIDENT.

When involved in a motor vehicle accident, first render whatever first aid you can; then get the facts. Just remember that the less time spent in argument the more time there will be for help and investigation. A burst of temper is never conducive to a calm appraisal of facts.

Make it a point to jot down the following items:

1. Name, sex, and address of all persons involved.
2. Names and addresses of all witnesses.
3. License numbers of autos involved.
4. Exact location, date and time.
5. Weather and road conditions.
6. Extent of injury and property damage.
7. Make a rough diagram showing position of cars.

It is a serious offense, punishable by laws of all states, to run away after injuring a person. Take the injured to nearest doctor's office or hospital and then report at once to the police.

Besides grinding AUTOMOBILE and TRACTOR cylinders we are equipped to handle stationary gas and steam engine cylinders, and produce work that is equally PRECISE and PERFECT as our automobile work.

MEXICO

A Country of Great Wealth in Minerals and Oils—Marvelous Climate—Great Scenic Beauty.

Speaking on "Mexico Beckons to American Business" before the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Grand Ballroom of the Palmer House at noon today (Wednesday), February 26, 1936, Professor Irving Fisher, Professor Emeritus of Economics at Yale University, said in part:

To Mexico is the most interesting country in the whole world. Indians, Spaniards, Anglo-Saxons, and mixed bloods of all degrees dwell side by side. Medieval churches and free thinking contest for control of education. On the same street we see the most up-to-date automobile and transportation by muleback or by human shoulders. Extreme wealth and poverty rub elbows. The best and the worst hygiene and some of the worst death rates in the world are shown side by side. Extremes of climates hot and cold, of altitude from sea level to their capital city on a plateau 7500 feet above sea level. Mexico rolls into one, North America, South America, Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Egypt.

What this conglomerate of incongruities means is great repression in the past and great opportunities in the future.

Mexico supplies the finest examples of past exploitation politically, religiously, economically. Medieval Spain like ancient Rome used her colonies to exploit them. Mexico was the treasure house in the new world to be looked to by the old world.

Exploitation became a tradition with those in power. Diaz introduced modern capital but took a heavy toll. He secured political and pecuniary advantages through foreign capitalists in return for robbing the Mexican people of their land and their freedom for the benefit of those capitalists. Like other political corruptors, he stole and sold "concessions" for "graft."

Mexico has great natural resources and needs foreign capital just as the United States in the early days needed foreign capital. But instead of getting it by business loans and on fair business terms, as we did or as the Argentine did, Mexico has rather been in the position of the North American Indians whose lands were juggled away from them to their own undoing and for the benefit of the white man.

Mexico has been regarded by many foreign capitalists or their agents as simply a lamb to be fleeced. The Mexicans know this and unfortunately they cannot, or at any rate as yet do not, distinguish between the attitude of these capitalists and the honest wish of the American people as a whole and of our government to be their friends.

Unfortunately, the history of our own government in the first Mexican war shows that we have in that instance at least lent color to the Mexican idea that our government as well as some of our people have not hesitated to take advantage of them.

These basic facts are much clearer to the Mexican people than to the American people. The losing party has a better memory than the winning party. Considering such past experience the Mexicans think that the giant of the North whatever its present declarations or even its present good intentions, is likely, if the opportunity should arise, to crush and rob them just as others have crushed and robbed them in the past.

Today Mexico is in a better position to look out for herself. After Diaz came another strong man Calles, not so intent as Diaz on personal gain and more intent on rescuing his countrymen from the results of previous oppression.

General Calles, being a genuine statesman, and deeply concerned for the future welfare of his country, wished to teach Mexicans to outgrow the personal sort of government to which they have been accustomed and to substitute an institutional government more like America's and England's.

General Calles was, in spite of himself, almost as powerful as a dictator like Mussolini or Hitler.

French War Minister Speeds Up Defense

DIRECTING the elaborate measures of defense taken by France in the Rhineland crisis is an army veteran of many years' service, Minister of War Louis Felix Maurin, who took speedy action to man France's mighty fort chain.

Maurin—Fort chain.

although the term dictator was and is out of favor in Mexico.

General Calles has a strong personality. Underneath his almost rough exterior he is a kindly humanitarian.

His "six year plan" for Mexico was not an imitation of the "five year plan" of Russia, but a plan especially adapted to Mexico. It included a fight against poverty, especially the poverty of the agricultural "peon."

The term "peon" originally meant an agricultural worker in debt. Today it includes all agricultural workers as well as all low wage earners in industry. Originally the peon was almost a debt slave. Under old Spanish rule, little changed by General Diaz, the "Hacendado" or in medieval parlance, the lord of the manor, took care to keep his workers in debt. If one of them wanted to marry he had to borrow from the hacendado. Hopelessly in debt to his master, he could not leave the land on which he worked and so became practically a serf or slave. Even today the peon is the victim of loan sharks.

An important part of the six year plan is to remedy the debt servitude of the poor peon.

A study of ten Mexican states showed the average wage to be 50 centavos a day, which is less than half our dollar.

Mexico went off the gold standard in 1931 and, in 1932, "reflating" the price level.

Owing to the milder previous deflation in Mexico than in the United States, due to Mexico's earlier abandonment of the gold standard, Mexico has not suffered as much depression as the United States.

Mexico's monetary policy has worked. American devaluation of the gold dollar helped Mexico because Mexico attached her peso to our dollar at a fixed ratio and, fortunately for her, did not imitate our American NRA or AAA or other wealth-destruction policies.

Moreover, Mexico has been helped by our silver purchases, since Mexico's chief product is silver.

Due to these recent special causes Mexico has passed from depression into something of a boom.

A long continued improvement in Mexico is inevitable. Fundamentally Mexico seems destined to improve faster than almost any other nation in the world, simply because there is so much more room for improvement.

Mexican improvement means our opportunity not to get unfair concessions as under Diaz, but to sell our goods and invest our capital on fair and normal terms, advantageous to both parties to the trade. It is a sound economic principle that both parties gain in a fair trade and that a prosperous trade prosperity works to the benefit of both.

To get the full advantage of such international trade, one important step is to take down trade barriers, as we have done with Canada. American business, if it wants to trade with Mexico must let Mexico trade with us. We cannot export unless we import equally. American business should be the first to insist on freer trade with the world in general, of course, but with Mexico in particular.

ASHTON NEWS

ASHTON—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vogel have recently had a new Pyrofax gas plant and stove installed at the Texaco Diner, the plant having been purchased of and installed by Ray D. King of LaMoille.

Mrs. Esther Hoffman is visiting at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Walls and other relatives in Rockford.

Mrs. Jacob C. Aschenbrenner and daughter, Miss Marian were entertained several days the past week in the new home of the former's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Emory E. Jones at Fisher.

Mrs. Berry Williams who submitted to an operation for the removal of a goiter at the Lincoln hospital at Rockville was able to return to her home the last of the week where she is continuing a satisfactory convalescence.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Drummond who have been spending the winter in Florida returned home on Thursday having enjoyed the winter months spent in the warmer climate and also their trip home.

The men of the Evangelical church will hold a banquet in the church parlors on Friday evening of this week. The program will be announced later.

A distinction not common to many rural schools is enjoyed by the Union school in having among its pupils two sets of twins. Harold Moore teaches the school in this district and the twins who have moved into the district since the first of March are Eugene and Eugene Eckhardt enrolled in the fifth grade and Helen and Mary Jane Friel who are in the eighth grade. Although four pupils moved out of the district ten new ones were added which makes the school's enrollment now 24 in number.

Announcements have been received by friends in Ashton of the marriage of Miss Vera Simister, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Simister of Prophetstown and formerly of Ashton to James A. Adair, which will take place at the Garfield Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago on Saturday of this week. Miss Simister is well known in this city having attended

BEGIN HERE TODAY

TOBY RYAN, 19, works behind the jewelry counter of a large Manhattan department store. On her way to work during the crowded morning rush hour, Toby collides with a good-looking young man. She forgets the incident but the young man, Tim JAMIESON (who does not know her name), beets a friend that within 24 hours he will have a date with her.

He comes to the store next day and asks her to have dinner with him. In spite of Toby's refusal, he insists he will wait for her. Later that afternoon Toby is sent to the advertising department for some watches left there to be sketched. MARLINE BALE, who works at the same counter as Toby, is jealous of her. In a flare of anger, Marline distracts Toby's attention from the watches. A little later the most valuable watch is missing. Toby is questioned. When the watch is found in her locker she is dismissed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI

THE tousled mop of light brown hair stirred restlessly and, from beneath the covers, one eye appeared. The eye opened, closed tightly, and then, after a moment, opened again.

Toby sat up in bed and stared at the clock. Six forty-five. That was all right. She sank back among the covers once more, drawing them closely about her chin. It was deliciously warm among the covers. In a minute more she'd have to get up and close the window, but just for a few moments—

Suddenly Toby frowned. She had a feeling, vaguely, that something unpleasant was to happen today.

All at once Toby knew. It was her job at Bergman's. She was through there—fired, discharged.

And for the worst of reasons, theft. The whole miserable scene the afternoon before came back to her—the private office with Miss Burrows and Mr. Henderson demanding, "What did you do with the watch?"; the man in the blue suit saying, "We found it in her locker"; all of them refusing to listen to her, staring at her with condemning eyes, believing her a thief.

With a sob Toby pulled the covers over her head. But that failed to shut out the insistent picture. It was true, all of it. She hadn't the faintest idea how the wrist watch had got into her locker. She had worked hard at Bergman's, long hours until her feet and her back ached. She had gone without lunches, had smiled and been cheerfully obliging to the most unreasonable customers.

And this was her reward! Anger flared in Toby's heart. "Somebody," she told herself, "took that watch and put it in my locker on purpose. They must have known I'd lose my job, but they didn't care. Maybe that's what they wanted. Oh, who could have done such a thing? Who would want to do it?"

Toby didn't know. She hadn't the ghost of an idea who could want to harm her. She wasn't aware that she had any enemies. Certainly there was no one at Bergman's whom she had ever harmed.

"Who," she asked herself again, "could have done it?"

SHE got out of bed, pulled her bathrobe about her, and picked up her purse from the table. There was exactly $13.84 in the purse. They had paid her at Bergman's, the Ashton school for years during her father's pastorate here.

The opening of the new Gamble store, which is located in the former Roessler grocery store, occurred Saturday. The building has been appropriately redecorated and with the fine new steel shelving and large convenient display tables is showing a fine assortment of merchandise, with Harry W. Himes of Oregon, in charge of the Ashton store.

An asparagus meeting in co-operation with the Ashton community club will be held on this Tuesday afternoon at the town hall at which it is expected that many of the asparagus growers of Lee county and surrounding counties will be present to enjoy the discussion of various subjects. Lee Somers, extension specialist from Chicago to be present.

L. V. Slothower, instructor in agriculture in the Ashton high school was a patient in the Dixon hospital the past week suffering from throat trouble. During his absence the agriculture classes prepared for the coming judging contest and the biology classes were taught by the different students.

The colonial tea, antique display and program sponsored by the Ashton Woman's club at the Presbyterian church on Friday afternoon was very largely attended. The guests including several out of town. A fine display of antiques was exhibited and a very interesting program was given. Tea was poured at a beautifully appointed table in the dining room by Mrs. John Drummond and Mrs. E. A. Clover.

"Say!" Hiatt exclaimed, "Why didn't I think of it before? I know a guy you ought to see—!"

for the four days she had worked that week.

"But it won't last long," Toby told herself, and knew altogether too well how true it was.

She began, mechanically, to dress. Job hunting, Toby knew, was harder than any work. She noticed, as she slipped on her shoes, that they had become wet the night before and were not quite dry. Well, she couldn't buy a new pair now.

She got into her black dress, rummaging in a drawer for fresh collar and cuffs. Presently she was ready and picked up her gloves and purse and went down to the street.

A subway train was pulling into the station as Toby pushed through the gate. She ran for it, managing to squeeze inside and find a strap to cling to.

A large woman, wearing a hat trimmed with artificial cherries, stood in front of Toby. The woman's coat was unfastened and Toby noticed the rhinestone clip at the woman's neck.

It made Toby think of the young man in the store the day before—the ridiculous one who had bought $59.60 worth of rhinestone clips and insisted he wanted to take her to dinner. Had he waited for her, as he had said he would? Toby didn't think so. She didn't think there was the slightest likelihood that he had. But—$59.60 for rhinestone clips!

Toby began to figure how many meals she could buy with $59.60. She gave up soon. Fifty-nine dollars and sixty cents was a lot of money.

She went directly to the employment agency that had sent her to Bergman's. There she told the woman who interviewed applicants exactly what had happened the day before.

The woman pursed her lips and murmured, "Mum. It's too bad." Toby couldn't tell whether the woman believed her or not. She said insistently, "I don't know any way I can prove it, but I didn't take the watch. I was waiting on a customer—"

The woman said, "Mum," again and went on, as though Toby had not spoken. "I hope we can place you, but it may be a little difficult just now. She fingered a file of cards before her. 'Here's something,' she said, drawing out one of the cards. 'You might try this one—'

It was a store farther down town, one Toby had never heard of before. The store wanted experienced sales women.

"It's six days a week," the woman went on, "and they only pay $12.50, but it's the best there is today. You might try it and later if there's something else I'll keep you in mind."

"Yes," Toby said. "I've come from—"

Before she could finish the man said crisply, "Too late. You should have been here an hour ago."

"But—" Toby began again. "It's no use," the man interrupted. "They only wanted four girls and they've hired 'em all. You can leave your name if you want to. Fill out this card—"

He handed her the usual application for employment and Toby took it. She wrote in her name and address and under "previous experience" listed all the places where she had worked except Bergman's.

Toby got to her feet. "I've got to have a job," she said. "I'll try it."

She was not sure how to reach the address and asked a guard in the subway station. Either he misdirected her or she did not understand the instructions, for when she left the subway she was blocks from the address.

She took a surface car, walking several blocks farther after she left the car. Finally she reached the address, found the right door and walked up a flight of stairs.

A man at a desk behind a railing glanced up. "You looking for a job?" he asked.

"Yes," Toby said. "I've come from—"

She gave the card back to the man, turned and went down the stairs and out to the street. Suddenly it occurred to her that she was hungry. She had eaten nothing the night before, had had only coffee that morning.

She walked along for several blocks looking for a place where the food would be cheap and fairly clean. Then, on a corner across the street, she saw a counter lunch.

Toby crossed the street and went inside. "A glass of milk and ham sandwich," she told the youth behind the counter.

It was warm in the lunch room and there was a pleasant aroma of food. Toby looked down at her shoes. She couldn't go around much longer in them, as they were.

THE waiter set the glass of milk and sandwich before her. Toby picked up the glass and drank deeply. How good it was. She took a bite of the sandwich. That was good, too. She wondered whether she should go back to the agency or telephone. It would cost a nickel to telephone, but it would save time. She had lost one job today by being late—

"He-Lo!"

The voice came from behind her shoulder. Toby whirled, staring up at a man in a gray suit and brown hat. He was carrying a trench coat over his arm.

"Thought I recognized you," the man said. "How are you and what are you doing in this neighborhood?"

Toby studied him blankly. Suddenly she said, "Oh, Mr. Hiatt—!" The photographer grinned back at her. "Didn't know me for a minute, did you?" he said.

"Thought I was a fresh guy!" "Well," Toby admitted, "just for a minute."

"That's all right," Marty Hiatt tossed his coat aside, leaned against the counter. "Say," he said, "those pictures you posed for the other day were great. Bergman's ought to give you a raise for that job, or anyhow a bonus."

Toby smiled bitterly. "It isn't likely they will," she said. "I'm not working there any more."

"You're not? Why? Got something better?"

Briefly she told him the story. "Gee," Hiatt said, "that's a tough break. There was genuine sympathy in his voice. 'What're you going to do?' he asked.

"Look for another job. I came down here to see about one this morning, but it was too late."

"What kind of a job?"

"The same thing—working in a store. Only it wasn't as nice a store as Bergman's."

Hiatt was listening intently. "What do they pay you for jobs like that?" he asked.

"This one was only $12.50. I got $15 at Bergman's."

The man whistled softly. "It's not much," Toby agreed, "but it's better than nothing."

"Sure. There's no doubt about that," Hiatt was silent for a moment. He said, frowning slightly, "I wish I knew of something for you. You ought to be able to find something better than that—"

Suddenly his face lighted. "Say!" he said, "why didn't I think of it before? I know a guy you ought to see. It's the very thing!"

"What?" Toby demanded. "I mean who—"

"Ben Blake," Hiatt said eagerly. "D'you ever hear of him?"

Toby shook her head. "No," she said. "I never did. Who is Ben Blake?"

Eleutherios Venizelos, 72, "Father of Greek Republic" Died in Exile this Morning

Veteran Regarded as One of Greatest of Modern Statesmen

Paris, March 18.—(AP)—Eleutherios Venizelos, former premier and "Father of the Greek Republic," which has now become a monarchy, died in self-imposed exile today after a short illness.

His wife and two sons, Sophocles and Kiriladis, were at his bedside when he succumbed at 8:50 A. M. (2:50 A. M. C. S. T.), to complications arising from a slight attack of influenza early this month.

The statesman's health had been generally poor since he came to Paris after the failure of the Greek revolution of March, 1935, resulted in restoration of the monarchy and wrecked the hopes of the Republicans.

Venizelos, generally regarded as one of the greatest statesmen of modern times, "passed painlessly," his physicians announced.

Heart Failed Him
His condition had grown worse last Friday; the physicians said his heart failed to stand the strain of the illness, and the patient lapsed yesterday into semi-consciousness from which he was never aroused.

Death in exile closed Venizelos' career just as his followers were hoping for his return from his second retirement.

Venizelos quit politics after an attempt was made on his life in 1933, and retired to his native Crete to end his days in peace, but he did not stay there long. After the collapse of the March revolution which he headed, Venizelos fled from the island south of Greece to Paris.

"Greece will never see me again," Venizelos declared as he took up his headquarters here.

Pardoned by King
He denounced the November, 1933 Greek plebiscite which resulted in the restoration of King George as a "bitter comedy," asserting only 20 per cent of the Greek people were royalists.

After the revolt was crushed by the loyal army, Venizelos, with his wife and other Republican leaders, escaped to Paris, safe from the death sentence which was passed upon him during his exile.

After King George was recalled to the throne, the monarch pardoned Venizelos, granting him amnesty.

"Man of Destiny"
Venizelos was called Greece's "man of destiny" and the history of present day Greece is written largely around his stormy career.

Seven times premier, he was a power both in and out of office and the force of his leadership touched on some phase or other of Greek life over nearly forty years.

President Wilson, upon his return from the Paris peace conference, characterized him as one of the greatest statesmen in Europe; in fact, Venizelos was the only one there to get all that he asked.

Yet in this hour of triumph he was beset by would-be assassins, repudiated at the Greek polls and driven into voluntary exile.

He then was 56, had been premier three times, had played a leading role in the revision of the Greek constitution, and conducted his country through the first and second Balkan wars and the World War. From exile he stated he had finished with national politics, though he acted for his country at the 1923 Lausanne conference where the Greco-Turk peace was signed.

But affairs in Greece were moving to a crisis before the gathering sentiment for a republic. In response to an overwhelming invitation from all parties the veteran statesman returned in January, 1924, though he made clear his stay was temporary and would last only until he could "put an end to civil war."

Sickness Halted His Career
The liberal chiefs, however, refused to cooperate except under his leadership and Venizelos was persuaded to become premier. In March, the de-thronement of the dynasty was voted and a Hellenic republic proclaimed.

Venizelos' administration was short-lived. He suffered a heart attack while engaged in a heated legislative debate, four physicians gave the verdict that he must rest, and in June, 1924, he resigned.

Succeeding years found him in various parts of Europe, building himself up physically. To occupy his mind he translated Thucydides into modern Greek and late in 1926 issued a manifesto announcing his definite withdrawal from political life.

Three times more, however, he returned to the premiership. He came back in July, 1928, because of a crisis between the royalists and the republicans, staying in office until May 21, 1932; took up the reins again in June, resigning in November to make way for a coalition government, and served again from January to March 1933.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROSA LOUISE ZIGLER (Contributed)

Mrs. Rosa Louise Zigler, well known and beloved resident of Woosung township and had been a resident of the same township until the time of her death Saturday, March 7, 1936 at 3:30 A. M.

She was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conrad Scholl. Her mother and father have both preceded her in death but she was the first to break the family circle of children, leaving seven brothers.

She was married to Henry Bruce Zigler, September 5, 1888 and this union was blessed with three children. Her husband, who will long be remembered for his activity in the church which they both loved, passed to his reward March 16, 1917.

She, with her husband, joined the United Evangelical church of Point thirty-seven years ago, later being transferred to Dixon, and she later becoming one of the charter members of Bethel church. She was also a member of the W. M. S. and the Sunday school and took an active part in all the activities of the church as long as health would permit. Although kept away much of the time during the last few years yet she continued faithful to the end.

After being unconscious for days she seemed to rally the day before she passed away and although not able to talk she made some expressions that will long be remembered. When told by her pastor that Jesus was by her side she answered in the affirmative. Her daughter heard her whisper "Mrs. McClain" (she was a goodly saint and friend who is over there) and who knows what visions she had as she whispered that name? She was also heard to whisper "The Eastern Gate," and to say "you can preach what you want." Could it be that she was thinking of this service?

Her passing, after years of suffering, was preceded by ten days of more serious illness; the end coming at 3:30 last Saturday morning with her pastor, her three children, a brother and his wife, Guy Robinson and the two nurses by her bedside. Those in the room can never forget her passing. The end came to her as sleep comes to one who is tired and exhausted God's presence was there in an unusual way. Surely the Psalmist's words are true, "Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil for thou art with me. Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

She is survived by her three children, Minnie Marietta and Marcus Conrad both at home and Louis Henry of Route 1, Sterling, all members of Bethel church; also two grandchildren, Mary Louise Zigler and James Louis Zigler. One grandchild, an infant son of Louis Zigler was buried in infancy. Seven brothers also survive. Fred Scholl of Polo; George Scholl of Watertown, So. Dakota; Charles W. Scholl of Polo; Merritt H. Scholl of Dixon; Frank L. Scholl of Council, Idaho; Louis F. Scholl of Polo, and Albert J. Scholl of Dixon. Besides these many friends and loved ones remain to mourn her departure and express their love and sympathy to the children, grandchildren, brothers and loved ones.

She shall be greatly missed in the church that she loved; but may we not feel that her work here is done for truly those who serve the Master live on both here and in the other world. She now joins the host of the redeemed to sing God's praises around His throne in Glory. To cease from the activities of the church militant to join the ranks of the church triumphant.

She loved her flowers and was found much of the time in the garden among them and the words of A. L. Pink are surely a memorial to her:

"The Rose Still Grows Beyond The Wall"
Near a shady wall a rose once grew,
Budded and blossomed in God's free light;
Watered and fed by morning dew,
Shedding its sweetness day and night.

As it grew and blossomed fair and tall,
Slowly rising to loftier height,
It came to a crevice in the wall
Through which there shone a beam of light.

Onward it crept with added strength
With never a thought of fear or pride;
It followed the light through the crevice length,
And unfolded itself on the other side.

The light, the dew, the broadening view,
Were found the same as they were before;
And it lost itself in beauties new.

Breathing its fragrance more and more.

Shall claim of death cause us to grieve,
And make our courage faint and fall
Nay let us faith and hope receive—
The rose still blooms beyond the wall.

Scattering fragrance far and wide,
Just as it did in days of yore
Just as it did on the other side;
Just as it will forevermore.
